

For instance, Flipkart and Jio have a competitive edge over others because of their strong parent companies which are Walmart and Reliance, respectively. Jio's competitors can't compete based on price because Reliance has very deep pockets and can afford to keep prices low to gain market share. The same could be said for Flipkart and Walmart.

Similarly, key individuals of a company, such as the top executives and founders, could give their company a competitive advantage. For example, if Flipkart's founders want to start a new company, they can attract more capital than relatively unknown companies.

