

Now, if other companies want to provide a comparable service, they will need to invest in space exploration and satellites. Hence, invading the market created by Starlink is incredibly difficult and will require a significant time commitment and monetary investment.

2. MANAGEMENT

If a company has well-known and respected top management personnel, it can be an advantage for the company over its competitors.

Earlier we mentioned that if Flipkart's founders decided to start a new business, they would attract capital because of their reputation as highly successful businesspersons. Also, if a top executive or board member of the Tata Group of companies were to start a new business, they would attract customers because of the trust associated with Tata Companies.
