

The partnership between Tata and Starbucks, and Tata and Zara are also examples of companies from different countries coming together to capture new markets.

2. HUMAN ASSETS AND SKILL SETS

Companies in the service sector would require significant skill pools. Naturally, companies with the largest skill pools will have an edge over other competitors. They will be able to operate with fewer hiccups and more efficiently. Let us understand this through some examples.

COMPANY	KEY HUMAN ASSETS AND SKILL SETS	BENEFIT
Tata Consultancy Services (TCS)	Approximately 1,00,000 skilled software developers	Providing a greater range of services Can handle various client requirements with ease
Major asset management companies	Large teams of researchers, advisors, relationship managers, and quantitative developers	Better investment returns Ease in attracting investors

The company needs to be an employer with a reputation for growth opportunities, decent compensation packages, and a nurturing environment.

Human assets and skill sets are not exclusive to IT companies. Professional services companies like auditing companies and law firms also can get an advantage over their competitors by building a quality talent pool.
