

Companies can get a competitive edge by simply being located near their customers or their suppliers. The three major ways in which location can be a source of competitive edge are:

- Cost structure is more preferable
- Higher availability of raw material
- Overall logistics cost is affected