

SUSTAINABILITY

Right at the beginning of our discussion on competitive edge, we mentioned that they need to be structural in nature.

For us to consider a company's competitive edge, it must be something that will last and cannot be overcome easily. Otherwise, it is a very weak advantage that cannot form the basis of investing in a certain company.

We must have a solid reason to believe that the company's source of competitive advantage will not go away.

However, if other companies also announce phones with the same technology, then it is not a very strong competitive advantage.

