

Diplodocus might have used its long neck to reach treetops. But some scientists think it may not have been able to lift its head very far, and only ate low-growing plants.

Small head

Long neck

Stumpy front legs

Diplodocus' tail was as long as the rest of its body.

Size: 25m (82ft) long

Habitat: Plains

Diet: Leaves