

Anchiornis

AN-kye-OR-niss

One of the smallest dinosaurs ever, the feathered Anchiornis was only about the size of a magpie.

We probably couldn't fly properly, but we could glide down to catch little bugs.

Almost a bird

Scientists named this little dinosaur Anchiornis, which means “near bird” because it was covered from head to toe in feathers.

Anchiornis fossil

126

251 million years ago

200

145

66

Triassic

Jurassic

Cretaceous

Fact File