

What else was there?

Dinosaurs are amazing, so it's no wonder they get a lot of attention, but there were plenty of other animals alive at the same time.

Beelzebufo was the size of a beach ball!

The first insects appeared over 400 million years ago!

Insects

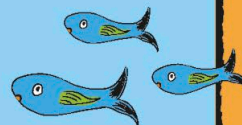

Some insects such as dragonflies, cockroaches, and millipedes were alive before the dinosaurs, and others such as ants, flies, and bees appeared throughout the Mesozoic.

Fish

Long before dinosaurs, the world's oceans were full of life. Plenty of reptiles, shellfish, and fish – including sharks – already existed.

Amphibians

Amphibians appeared before the dinosaurs, and have been around ever since. One ancient frog, Beelzebufo, was so big it might have eaten small dinosaurs!
