

Made to hunt

Coelophysis was an excellent hunter with good eyesight and the ability to run very fast. Its teeth were small but shaped like hooks – good for catching prey.

Teamwork

Scientists think that Coelophysis probably lived and hunted in family groups, because hundreds of its skeletons were found in the same place in New Mexico, USA.

Long neck

Thin tail

Adult Coelophysis may have taught the young ones how to hunt.

Size: 3m (10ft) long

Habitat: Desert plains

Diet: Small animals