

SEW THE QUILT TOP

Lay the blocks out in 14 rows, in the pattern of your choice, with six blocks in each row. Sew the blocks in each row together. Sew the rows together, matching the corners of the flying geese blocks (see pp.62–63).

Stitch the narrow border to both the left and right sides of the quilt top, squaring off the excess border strips. Then, attach the border to the top and bottom of the quilt. Stitch the larger outer border in the same left, right, top, and bottom sequence.

ASSEMBLE THE LAYERS

Lay the backing fabric on a flat surface, right side down. Carefully lay the wadding on top. Smooth out the two to make sure there are no folds. Then lay the quilt top on the wadding. The wadding and the backing fabric will overhang the quilt top by a few centimetres (inches) each. Starting from the centre and working outwards, pin the layers together using safety pins, making sure all the layers sit flat and even with one another. Check the back of the quilt as well.

Machine or hand quilt with the design of your choice.

ATTACH THE BINDING

Lay the quilt, right side up, on a flat surface. Follow the instructions for double-fold binding, as shown on page 51, or bind the quilt using the method of your choice.

Using a variegated quilting thread makes more of a feature of the quilting stitches. You can use a quilting thread that either blends in, or stands out, depending on your personal preference.
