

Free Sources of Data

If you are just starting, you might not have enough to pay for subscription services. Do not worry. You can use multiple free sources to start with financial analysis.

For example, you can use screener.in, which fetches data in a simplistic manner. You just need to create an account and log in to the platform. At times, you might not be able to find data in best form. You can convert original balance sheet to excel format.

EXAMPLE

Suppose you want to download the Balance sheet of Pidilite Industries.

This might take time. But, it is the closest free substitute for free data.

This is not the most ideal way to get data, but this is where you can start as a learner. Going ahead you should use paid subscription to get data as you would be taking high stakes decisions based on them.
