

This is important because not all expansions is good. Some are good, whereas others can be counter-productive. Some possible reasons behind expansion (good/bad) are:

The negative things won't be communicated clearly, but we must figure it out by joining the dots. However, this one can only understand with experience and looking at multiple companies.

The best kind of expansion is when the company invests in their core business and grows the same. The variable are least in this case.
