

As seen, certain questions need to be asked to analyze the Other Non-current Assets. We need to understand the recoverability form and time and quality of these assets.

Quality is understood by the company's past - whether or not there has been a major write-off. We then need to understand what exactly each item is, how does the company utilize the same, how and when will it be recovered or benefits will received.

These questions help us understand Non-current Assets - operating as well as non-operating. In the next chapter, we start with Non-current Liabilities and Equity.
