Auditor's Report

So far, we have learned about standalone and consolidated statements. Now, we must look into another important aspect of financial statements - an independent auditor's report. It is one of the first things we check while studying a company's financials.

It is compulsory that whenever any company prepares financial statements, they must get it audited or checked. This checking is called an audit. An audit is done by an independent third party who is compulsorily a Chartered Accountant. Every single financial statement must be verified every single financial year during the audit. This is basically like a third party approval that the accounting reported by the company is true.

After the audit is over, the auditor submits a report which is attached with the income statement and balance sheet by the company.

Every company compulsorily needs to disclose the Auditor's report.
