

Our aim is to understand the profitability of each segment. For any given segment, few segments will perform well and few segments will not do as well. The market conditions in different segments will also be different.

We aim to understand which segments are doing well fundamentally for the company in terms of size and profitability. Which segments consume how much capital and what kind of returns do they generate on the same?

To analyze a company comprehensively, we must understand the different business segments of that particular company. A detailed segment analysis will give us an idea of which business segments are doing well and which are not doing well.

We must analyze all the important segments in which a company operates. We must look at companies as a group of different business segments and analyze and understand the performance of each segment.
