

Other than these, there are many reasons why the investor will not fund some others are.

1. STAGE

Different investors have different preferences about the stage at which they are comfortable investing. So if you are just starting, you can go and talk to the investors. They will listen to your ideas. However, they won't put in their capital as they might be not interested in such young companies. Some investors like to invest in comparatively more stable companies. If you reach out to wrong set of investors or your business has traction, you are too early and fundraise might not go through

3. THEIR PRIOR EXPERIENCE

Every investor comes with baggage, they have had good experiences in certain industries and bad in others. Investors evaluate ideas with baggage of past experiences they have had in different industries.

So if your industry is something in which they have had a good experiences and made good money, they will look into your idea. However, if you have a business in an industry where they have lost money, they are naturally skeptical about your business.
