

3.4 FOUNDER MINDSET

In the previous section, we learned about what investors want to fund and how exactly their math works. In this section we will discuss the founder mindset. How you can be better prepared for the long and testing process and avoid the common mistakes?

FOUNDER MINDSET

These are the things the founders need to understand and keep in mind. With this, fundraising will become more systematic. Ultimately, a business needs to be built, and the business will attract capital sooner or later if it has merit. Let us understand different points that need to be kept in mind for the process to be relatively easier for the founders.

