

4. SUBSCRIPTIONS

There are multiple subscription based platforms that helps you identify investors. There is VCC Circle, VCC Edge, and Venture Intelligence, etc. These are subscription services that provide data about recent investments and active investors. You can use this platforms to identify investors relevant to your business.

However, these subscriptions are relatively expensive and not many early stage companies will find it worth their money. In such cases you can always ask for free trials if they have a collect base level of data relevant to you. Such platform happens to be an effective but expensive way to identify active investors in your space.