

7. LINKEDIN

One of the most powerful tools when raising capital is- LinkedIn. Simply log in to LinkedIn and search for Angel investors in India. You will get a list of people. You can add them to Connections and send them a cold message. A simple cold message goes a long way. At times it can be start of a relation that lasts a lifetime.

Many entrepreneurs have raised capital using LinkedIn. All you have to do is send them a cold message introducing your company and your pitch. You can tell them that you are looking to raise capital and request for their time.

Out of every 6 messages that we sent, we got at least one pitch, and this worked out well for us. We sent at least 60 to 70 messages and got at least eight or nine pitches. Nowadays, LinkedIn is becoming even more powerful. You will find a lot of quality investors here. The best part is that you can directly reach out to them without gate keepers. If they find your Idea interesting, they will provide you with some time, and you can pursue it from there.

These blogs also have various other lists, such as top Angel investors in India right now. You can identify and reach out to investors based on this list as well. You can go ahead with other forms of cold reach as well over email and other social media platform.
