

If you observe, it took us one whole year (from October 2020 to September 2021) to raise the required capital. This is a long journey with a lot of opportunity costs. The market and business might change, and new competition might come up.

On speaking to other founders too, this is what we saw - 3.5 to 4 months was the shortest time between the first pitch and capital in bank. Typically, the procedure took 4 to 6 months. We went through a 12-month process because we were not completely prepared when we first started. We only realised this in retrospect. Also, a large number of mistakes could be avoided and that is where this book should come in handy.

However, those 55-60 pitches helped our business grow. We learned a lot about what part of the business would work and what would not. It helped us think more critically about our business.
