

So these are the things you must keep in mind when looking for investors.
So far in the book, we have discussed:

- Whether you need capital or not?
- Investors' and the founder's mindset.
- What are the different types of investors?
- What stage do they invest in?
- How exactly can you find and reach them?
- Importance of recommendations and connect.
- Try to gain as much trust as possible. If the investor does not trust you, no capital will flow. Remember few things:
 - You have to talk to a large number of investors
 - Rejection is pretty common in the initial stage. You do not need a large number of people to support your idea. You only need a handful of people to support you.
 - Secondly, try to get recommendations to get more trust. This increases your chances of raising your first cheque.

Now we are good understanding of different types of investors, their expectati
