

In the previous chapter, we discussed about how to reach potential investors, what they are looking for at different stages, and the methods and platforms you can use to connect with them.

We now need to understand the process. This includes different steps before reaching out to investors and also during conversation with them. The investors will be asking many questions and might ask for documents. We will discuss what you need to do if the investors are interested and ask for follow-up meetings. Lets first discuss about creating the pitch deck the most important document to help you secure time with investors.
