

Generally, you have approximately 60 to 90 seconds to retain an investor's interest when sending them a pitch deck. So if they like what they see in that short span, they will spend another few minutes. If they are still interested in what you do, they will invite you for a discussion.

No investor ever spends hours going through your pitch deck and analyzing it. They will glance through it and make snap judgments for business.

F

ks