

THE LENGTH OF THE PITCH DECK

Different founders have different opinions on the length of a pitch deck. Many founders have raised capital or got the second meeting with less than a 10-page pitch deck. On the contrary, others have raised capital with a 20+ page pitch deck.

One thing you must remember is that the investor will give you a limited time. So if you are sharing a pitch deck of 25-30 pages long, it should be engaging enough. If not, the investor will leave the pitch deck midway.

The ideal length would be between 15 to 20 pages. Less than 15 pages, you might not be able to communicate enough. More than 20 pages and you might be overcommunicating, which isn't required. 15 pages is an ideal length where you can share relevant things and not over-communicate.

Remember, you don't need to share every business detail with the investor. It is natural to be excited when talking about your business, and you'd want to share everything with the investor. However, they only want to listen enough to get them interested. If they are excited about your idea, they will ask for details when you meet them. A 15-page pitch deck is stand your business without arify their questions in sub-
