

In-person interaction is not always the case nowadays. Most of your reach will be via LinkedIn or emails. However, when you send an email or linked in message, you are again using an elevator pitch but in writing. You will need 3- 4 lines that gets the investor interested and they go through pitch deck.

Investors have hundreds of pitch decks. In many cases, they pass some of them without even opening them. Thus, if you have an attractive cover letter, there is a higher probability that the pitch deck will be opened.

The end goal is to get to that meeting. Once you get the meeting, further discussion will be on the merit of your business and traction.
