

Let us take an example of statement "Insurance penetration should increase in India".

Even if most people agree, don't assume that your investors will be on the same page. Explain to them very clearly that this is something you believe in and have based your business on this. You do not want to lose them due to gap in communication.

Founder

This is what I believe in and have based my business on

Investor

STORY TELLING:

Tell them stories about your business but back them with numbers. You may want to tell potential investors why you started your business, how you grown and where you intend to go. However, do not make your pitch all about stories. Back the stories with numbers. Potential investors are looking for numbers to give them context.

F

ks