

RESEARCH ABOUT YOUR INVESTORS

Research about the investors you are meeting before the meeting. Learn about their portfolio, companies they have invested in, and recent investments. This will give an idea about the kind of investor they are and their preferences. You can even judge whether the person is a good fit for you. You'll also understand what they are looking for when making investment decisions. Being well researched about your investor shows them your preparedness - that you are ready for meetings and more prepared than others. This generally sends very positive signals to the investors.

first 15 minutes:
for pitching

next 45 minutes
for taking investor questions

AIM FOR A PITCH THAT IS AROUND 10 MINUTES IN LENGTH

A pitch that is too short won't clearly explain your business, and a pitch too long will not retain the investor's interests. 10 minutes is an ideal duration that you should aim for. Do not have pitches longer than 15 minutes as well. Prepare, practice and review in a manner that your pitch gets completed within 10 minutes, after which you can take questions about your business. In the entire length of 60 minutes, the pitch should be for a maximum of 15 minutes, and the rest 45 minutes should be used for taking questions.

ks