

03 CREDIBILITY

Any company or business that raises capital starts getting to enjoy relatively higher credibility. It simply shows that someone else, like a third party, has evaluated your business idea and is ready to invest capital in you. So this is a big credibility check that a specific business is doing something worthwhile and someone else has endorsed that or agreed to the idea.

They have not only promoted the idea verbally, but they have also invested in the idea. So it helps your company gain recognition that whatever you do has been endorsed by someone else too. Also, at times Investors have strong Investor brands in market as well which helps the companies with lot of credibility.

04 FUNCTIONAL EXPERTISE

This might not be necessary, but you can get functional expertise. You might get access to a group of people who come from a tech background.

Say, for instance, that your business is in technology. As a result, with the aid of investors, you will have access to the best tech talent available. Also, they can sit down with you and help you make critical technology related decisions and help you build processes in the initial days. You can ask for their feedback on a specific product.

We not alwa estimate the learning curve of founders and the company at an aggressive pace.