

So, depending on the industry, you can identify the most critical metrics.

For example, for a social media company, there could be several metrics like:

Once you have identified the most important industry metric, you must look for recent deals in the same space. Which are the other similar companies that have raised capital recently?

F

Once you have identified relevant deals, you can use them to value your business.