

Let's consider another example in the eCommerce space.

It is worth noting that this can only work if both companies are similar in terms of quality. If your company has significant risks that the other doesn't, this method will not work.

This is how you can value your company based on recent deals and important KPIs within your industry.