

ASSET VALUE

Next is the Asset Value method. Asset value is basically the total value of assets a company has, both tangible as well as intangible. You can add value of all the assets and arrive at company's total value. You will get intangibles valued by an external valuer to judge its true value. This can create a valuation benchmark below which you should not go under any circumstances.

you should never close a deal at value less than XYZ.

> XYZ

This is the lowest you should be valuing yourself. This is because simply selling assets will also realise that value. However, most startups won't have as many assets to value themselves on.

F

ks