

STRENGTHS

- Your Team may be solid
- The product/ tech is good and stable in its current state

WEAKNESS

- The size of the opportunity may be relatively low
- The competitive environment is very competitive

A small opportunity in a competitive environment will generally be declined by the investors.

However, let us consider the following alternate scenario:

- The competitive environment is not very high

- Sales/ Marketing hasn't been cracked yet
- Need for more financing going ahead

So, this presents a picture of a company's different strengths and weak-nesses. Note that very few companies get a tick mark for all the criteria. Once you understand the strengths and weaknesses of the company you can use score board method to value the company.

Again, this is a relatively technical process to reach a value even after identifying strengths and weaknesses.

In most cases this is a method to
F

