

SUMMING UP...

With this, we have discussed the entire fund-raising process right from finding investors, reaching out to them, pitching your business to them, and providing them with the supporting documents, valuation, and paper-work when it is a yes.

The above process is tedious and takes time. Majority of your pitches will get a no. Be mentally prepared for rejections.

What if it's a no? You have to keep surviving. We will deal with this topic further in the next section.
