

But in the end, the question is on YOU.

Many other questions will be asked.

Early-stage investments questions revolve around your ability. Suppose the company grows from a startup to a 10 crore annual revenue company. Can you scale up and manage that business? After that, if the company grows to a hundred crore company, will you be able to adapt and manage? It comes down to your ability to adapt to growth, challenges, and skills. Most importantly will you be able to build and lead a team?
