Thus, analysts and business managers should keep track of developments in these ministries and also stay updated about the latest developments within the industry. Also, staying abreast of ministry websites will allow them to identify opportunities presented by the government.

Ownership-related Laws

A few industries are recognised to be sensitive to a country's interest. For instance, a company that owns a large amount of key natural resources of the country.

vedanta Limited is India's largest zinc miner and currently holds 72% market share in India's Zinc industry.

Vedanta Limited

So, for companies and industries that are critical to a country's general interests, ownership-related laws are restrictive. These limit the ability to own companies in that industry. Restrictive practices limit the growth of industries. Analysts and entrepreneurs must know about such ownership-related laws, to plan for them accordingly, well in time.
