

For those planning to launch a new product or service, all potential customer groups must be listed and then segmented based on the five questions mentioned earlier. A combination of the segmentation factors (who, what, how, why, and where) can be used for even more specific customer segmentation.

Customer Profile for each segment is created.

This is done by understanding the needs and wants, pains and gains for each customer segment.