

For example, when quick-service restaurants (QSRs) such as McDonald's, Burger King, and Pizza Hut came to India, they were selling pizza, burgers, and fries. So many experts anticipated these QSRs to shift to a menu based on Indian tastes and also offer a full-meal menu. This would open a bigger market for QSRs in India, experts believed. And this did happen. Changes made to the product made the product-customer fit a much stronger one. This is the kind of mindset that a person needs to adopt when analyzing a value proposition, or working on building one.
