

An understanding of the value chain from the first tier of the broad industry analysis would help in understanding the industry practices.

Standard and Best Practices

Benefits

They are already being deployed by other players and the results are known, expected, and tested in the market. There is evidence that a particular practice works and will produce results.

Problems

They are being done by other players too and the results are known and expected. As other players are already practicing them, these firms enjoy an early-mover advantage. Hence, new firms stand at a position of disadvantage. Also, the results are known and expected by all.
