

Major Practices in Logistics Industry

Major industry practices include:

- Renting the warehouses instead of owning them.
- Owning the warehouse equipment, designed by the company at times.
- Owning a small part of the fleet while outsourcing major requirements.
- Asset-light model to scale the business.
- Working based on collaborations, particularly by smaller players.

The players can decide based on strategic-planning that they wish to follow industry practices or defy them and try to create a source of differentiation.
