

The process of customer profiling is largely open-ended and subjective to the analyst, but the underlying principle remains the same. Get as close to the customers and the buying process as possible. Some of the effective techniques to understand the customer better:

- Questionnaires
- Phone interviews of the customers
- Phone interviews of the middlemen
- Paid market research
- Online surveys of the past
- Videos on the lives of potential customer segments
- Physical presence at the point of sales
- Physical presence at the point of the utilization of the product