

As introduced in the book - Value Proposition Design, the different elements of customer profiles are discussed going forward.

Different customer segments have different pains, gains and risks.

Together they help create a profile for the customer, helping understand what the customer exactly wants, what he wants to get rid of, and what factors influence the purchase decision.