

Conclusion

A good understanding of the customer requirements and a good understanding of products - its features is required. This should help us understand the industry and its various companies.

Also, all new ideas and products must be checked in a similar manner under the 'value proposition map' to see if they have a strong customer-market fit or not.

Only ideas that pass this will find a market for themselves.

'Customer profile' is the key.