

Welcome, and adios!

We don't know how to process this month, honestly. Between the magazine closing, preparations for Zero1 Awards, and the general rucuks of the Digit Test Centre, we did not have time to process anything. It was so overwhelming.

Adios, Overlord!

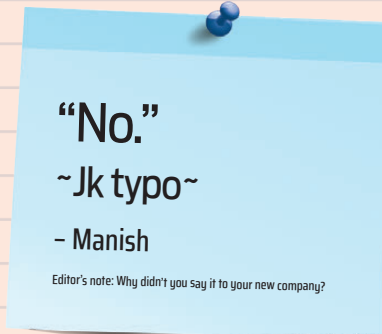

If you haven't guessed it already, first of all, shame on you for not knowing the Overlord. The fabled gamer of the Test Centre, known for his completionist runs, an overly competitive gaming attitude despite his rather quiet personality, Manish "TriggerHappy" Rajesh, revealed that his time in Digit had come to an end.

He said his final 'no' to Satvik, who had flown down to Mumbai from Noida for his farewell, and just like that, Manish left. He left behind some teary eyed folk who don't know whom to assign the throne to. The SKOAR! Council is in shambles with this power vacuum emerging all of a sudden, but the Council has come to a mutual agreement that the Overlord's throne shall remain untouched.

We already expressed our farewell messages to the Overlord, in a rather colourful night of celebration, who now joins the other side of media, IYKYK. But for one last time, from all of us, "Adios, Overlord. May your sails fly high, and you score (pun, definitely not intended) all the wealth of success and joy on your voyage!"

Welcome, Amigo!

While Manish said his goodbyes, there was a familiar face who knocked the doors of our Test Centre in Noida. Siddharth Chauhan, who's back at Digit for his second innings, and his third at Times, joined the Noida office. Well, he came in the day this was being penned down. So, right on time. Filling in the shoes of Darab, who was Siddharth's replacement, the last time he had call it quits, Siddharth came through the doors with his beaming smile and planted himself on his desk, ready to sail the high seas with the familiar folk at Digit. All ze very best!

About the travellers

This month was packed with launches and events, which meant the office was seldom at full capacity. We had folks running from one event to the other with the only motto - cover the event, rest, repeat.

Concrete jungle where dreams are...

Dhriti and Satvik, in all of this madness landed in China and Indonesia to attend launch events. While Satvik was in Bali, enjoying the bright sunny beaches, Dhriti landed from one concrete jungle into another. However, given that she's in Shenzhen, she will find something of the other to do. She's a Digit geek afterall. And, what better place for us to be, than the place that can be aptly dubbed as the Tech Capital of the East.

Beachy vibes, bro!

Dealing in binary

All of you know, that this is the month of the Digit Zero1 Awards. While we slog away at the Test Centre, putting each product through its paces, we have to deliver some really hard news to you. Our Zero1 Awards issue is now relegated to a later date. We know, we know, it is not normal. -But, what is? Look around you. Everything is going astray. The world is falling apart. You all are doomed.-

Apologies, BooMan typed something while I was away. So, coming back. Digit's Zero1 Awards issue will be out soon. We will have the awards. Now, I should get back to testing before ze bossman comes and....ahskjdjhka-helpshkdjhasjkd
