New UPI rules bring higher limits, expanded circles and more Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has introduced some massive upgrades to the Unified Payments Interface (UPI) system in order to make the transactions easier with improved user experience. The changes include increasing the transaction limits, bigger UPI circles, which as per RBI, can benefit millions of users. The authority has raised the UPI123Pay transaction limits for feature phone users. Users of the feature phone can now send up to Rs 10,000.

The previous cap was set at Rs 5,000. This makes it simpler for feature phone users to conduct their financial transactions because users can now send more money using UPI123Pay.

Confused about what to watch on YouTube? This new feature may soon help you

YouTube is adding a variety of features to enhance the user experience. In the latest update, the Google-owned video streaming platform is now working on a new feature for users who are confused about what they want to watch. Known as the "Play Something" floating action button (FAB), the feature will solve the problem by playing random videos. For those unfamiliar, the feature has been under testing for over a year and is currently available to Android users with version 19.5.

Speaking of the usage, the "Play Something" button available above the home tab with the black background will help the users to straight dive into the content without having to scroll search or find something.

After tapping on the button, the feature will start playing a video directly in the Shorts player. It is worth noting that the feature is not limited to Shorts. It can also play regular videos in portrait form.
