OpenAI launches ChatGPT Gov

OpenAI has introduced ChatGPT Gov, a special version of ChatGPT designed for US government agencies. ChatGPT Gov aims to help agencies improve efficiency, productivity, and decision-making while maintaining high security and compliance standards. Keep reading to know more about OpenAI's ChatGPT Gov. ChatGPT Gov is a tailored version of ChatGPT that allows government agencies to use OpenAI's advanced AI models, including GPT-4o, in a secure environment. Agencies can deploy it on Microsoft Azure's commercial or government cloud, ensuring compliance with strict cybersecurity standards like IL5, CJIS, ITAR, and FedRAMP High. "ChatGPT Gov reflects our commitment to helping U.S. government agencies leverage OpenAI's technology today. We continue to work toward FedRAMP Moderate and High accreditations for our fully managed SaaS product, ChatGPT Enterprise," the company said. <https://tinyurl.com/yc2u4rb3>

HUMANITY'S LAST EXAM

Humanity's Last Exam is built to simulate real expert-level problem-solving rather than just regurgitating memorized facts. One of its defining features is its massive scale. The exam consists of 3,000 highly challenging questions that span more than 100 different subjects, ranging from mathematics and physics to law, medicine, and philosophy. Unlike many previous AI benchmarks that were primarily designed by researchers, Humanity's Last Exam's questions were crowdsourced from a global network of nearly 1,000 experts across 500+ institutions in 50 countries.
