Apple Watch may get in-built cameras as part of AI push

Apple is reportedly working on adding cameras to future Apple Watch models, bringing AI-powered features to its smartwatches. According to a report by Bloomberg, Apple is considering placing a camera inside the display of the standard Apple Watch Series, similar to the front-facing camera on iPhones. Meanwhile, the Apple Watch Ultra will likely feature a camera on the side of the watch, near the crown and button. This design choice makes sense since the Ultra is thicker, providing more space for hardware. <https://tinyurl.com/2nafzus7>

Google Pixel 9a lacks some AI features found in rest of Pixel 9 models, here's why

Google has made AI a core part of its Pixel experience, but not all models get the same treatment. The newly launched Pixel 9a comes with a toned-down version of Google's AI, missing some key features found in the rest of the Pixel 9 lineup. The reason? Hardware limitations—specifically, its lower RAM capacity. Unlike the flagship Pixel models with 12GB of RAM, the Pixel 9a has only 8GB. <https://tinyurl.com/5n8zew2c>
