

CONFEDERATE GENERAL (1816-94)

JUBAL ANDERSON EARLY

Arrogant and acerbic, rumpled and careless of appearance, Early was a graduate of West Point who had quit the Army to become a country lawyer. With the outbreak of the Civil War, the native Virginian returned to uniform as an outstanding Confederate brigade and divisional commander, seeing action at First and Second Bull Run, Antietam, Fredericksburg, Gettysburg, and other major battles. Lee called him "my bad old man" for his profanity, but prized his craftiness, resolve, and fearlessness.
