

The Valley Campaign of 1864

This sketch of Sheridan outside his tent shows him listening intently to a report of the day's fighting despite the late hour. As a general, he liked close contact with his troops and a "headquarters in the saddle."