

Steaming into Mobile Bay

Julian Oliver Davidson's Battle of Mobile Bay (1886) shows Farragut's warships and ironclads exchanging fire with Fort Morgan on the left. The Union monitor Tecumseh, on the right, has hit a mine and is sinking.

“Damn the torpedoes! Full speed ahead.”

ATTRIBUTED TO DAVID FARRAGUT, ON BEING TOLD THAT MOBILE BAY CONTAINED HIDDEN MINES (“TORPEDOES”), AUGUST 5, 1864

Final toll

By the end of the battle, 150 Union sailors were killed, many of them in the sinking of the Tecumseh, and 170 were wounded. Only 12 Confederate sailors were killed and 19 wounded.
