

Republican running mates in the 1856 election

The presidential candidate was John C. Frémont, senator for California in 1850–51. His vice presidential candidate, William L. Dayton, won the nomination over Abraham Lincoln. They campaigned under the slogan "Free soil, free labor, free speech, free men."